Workshops

Casting 101 with Jim Arnold

Bringing his extensive experience from casting Matilda, the Musical at the RSC, Wicked, Pretty Woman-The Musical; The Great British Bake Off Musical, Bonnie & Clyde, Shrek-The Musical, and Charlie and the Chocolate Factory, Jim will host a discussion about how casting works, how to prepare for auditions, and an opportunity to ask any questions about the casting process.

Investigating Structure and Character via Dramaturgy with Mingyu Lin

An introduction to the work of a dramaturg, followed by a look at analysing a play's structure and character journeys, and how to apply this in other creative roles (eg directing, performing, designing, writing etc).

No Fear Fundraising with Matt Harper-Hardcastle

Writing grant applications can feel daunting - how to start, where to look, what to write! Running Next Door But One for 10 years, our CEO and Artistic Director Matt Harper-Hardcastle has learned a lot about this very tricky process. In this workshop he will highlight his top tips for writing a successful funding application, so you'll walk away with some useful tools and with a bit less fear!

Project Development and Networking with Kate Veysey

This is an opportunity to network with other local practitioners- writers, directors, actors, designers, dancers, facilitators, producers and stage managers, to share your ideas and contacts. During this two hour live session in the York Theatre Royal studio, there will be structured exercises aimed at helping you shape or progress your individual projects, with input from the other expertise in the room. A similar session in our previous Opening Doors program received feedback that 'It was a really beautiful session, and a perfect opportunity to share a space with fellow creatives and get our creative juices flowing. It was a reminder that being creative doesn't have to mean on my own, and showed me that I have such a big creative support with NDB1 and it's associates.'

Writing for the Stage with Misha Duncan-Barry

Interested in creating characters for stage? Wanting to understand structure? How does one begin to write for stage? We will look at the how playwrights use exercises and ideas to develop character and write plays. Whether you're an experienced writer, a student or just interested in the concept of creating stories for the stage this workshop will be for you. This session is open to writers of all levels of experience. This session will be led by playwright and York Theatre Royal's Resident Artist Misha Duncan-Barry. Pen and paper will be provided but please feel free to bring your own writing equipment if preferred

Awesome Applications with Matt Harper-Hardcastle

This is a follow on from No Fear Fundraising. Using a mix of sample questions from different grant applications you will build a bank of core answers to support the development of your own projects. This workshop will also encourage us to share our application writing with one another, so that we can address the 'fear of clicking submit' whilst also learning from how other people phrase answers.

The Ethical Director with Kate Veysey

What considerations do we have when working with real life testimonies?

When working with triggering subject matter, what can we do to safeguard our audience and our team? How do I also protect myself as the director?

Drawing from her experience of working on productions She Was Walking Home with NDB1 (subject matter: harassment and abuse), Kingdom with Buglight (subject matter: homelessness and PTSD) and Catch with Clean Break (subject matter: women's experience in and after the criminal justice system)), Kate will facilitate a session that enables us to consider our role as a director in managing challenging subject matter.

Creative Coaching with Lisa Shaw

Do you ever get stuck on where to go next, which project to start, what direction your work should take? Then this session is for you. Working together facilitated by a professional coach to understand common problems, and ways to challenge your own thinking in order to do the work that is right for you.

Rehearsal Room Ready with Juliet Forster

A practical session that covers how to run a happy, creative rehearsal room, including techniques and tips for bringing out the best in your team and how to deal with potential challenges.

A panel of Producers with Joshua Goodman, Nick

Stephenson and York Theatre Royal

Are you an emerging producer and want some insight for your career development, or are you self-producing your work and want some support with challenges you are facing? Then come to this panel discussion of producers and programmers from large theatres, touring companies and community-based organisations to get some top tips and ask your burning questions about producing.

DIY Dramaturgy: Some useful tools and things to think about with Emma Adams

A tool kit of ideas and processes to help you develop and troubleshoot your projects with a bit of space to think and talk about what dramaturgy is, what we do and how we work with artists.
